Promotion Award 2023 of the Omnis Religio Foundation

Dear Dr Zwingenberger,
dear Rabbi Prof. Dr Jonathan Magonet,

The Board of Directors and the Board of Trustees of the Omnis Religio Foundation are pleased to inform you that the International Jewish-Christian Bible Week will receive this year's Promotion Award of the Foundation. By awarding this prize, the Foundation recognises the longstanding commitment of numerous people from Judaism and Christianity who have worked to promote interreligious dialogue based on reading the shared Holy Scriptures. In this way, we also congratulate you on being able to invite people to the 55th edition of this Bible Week this year. It is a strong sign of hope that a grassroots initiative of Jewish and Christian readers of the Bible has developed into such a long-lasting series of international encounters and dialogue events bringing together people from different countries with very different spiritual and professional backgrounds through the reading of the Scriptures. You, the organisers and participants, succeed in strengthening and revitalising the relationship between the two religious communities. In this way, the International Jewish-Christian Bible Week has also become a model and an inspiration for numerous other dialogue events over the years.

The 2023 Promotion Award of the Omnis Religio Foundation is endowed with 3000 euros. We hope that this financial support can be a small contribution to being able to carry out the event in a beneficial way also in this year and hopefully in many years to come. Please provide us with bank details so that we can transfer the prize money to you.

We wish the committed work of the International Jewish-Christian Bible Week many more successful years and send our warmest greetings to all other responsible persons as well as to the participants of this year's Bible Week.
